June 17, 2010, Auburn Hills, Mich. -

The Chrysler Foundation today announced a $50,000 donation of supplies and cash in support of relief efforts for residents impacted by severe tornadoes that hit Northwest Ohio earlier this month.

Ten Ram 2500/3500 heavy duty pickup trucks, filled with generators, wheel barrows, shovels, chainsaws, ladders, tarps, boots, and other materials, were driven to Waterville, Ohio, from Chrysler Group World Headquarters in Auburn Hills, Mich. The supplies were delivered to ISOH/IMPACT, a community-based charitable organization, whose disaster response team will put the recovery materials directly in the hands of those in need in areas most impacted by the tornado. ISOH/IMPACT will also use the supplies to outfit a complete first response trailer that will be taken onsite to help those most in need.

Chrysler's Auburn Hills employees were joined by employees from Toledo Machining and the Toledo North Assembly Plant to present the cash donation and unload the much needed supplies.

"The Chrysler Foundation, Chrysler Group LLC and the local employees of the Toledo Supplier Park, Toledo North Assembly Plant and Toledo Machining are proud to help the residents of Northwest Ohio with their clean-up and recovery efforts following the devastating June 5 tornadoes," said Brian Glowiak, Vice President - The Chrysler Foundation. "ISOH/IMPACT identified the hardware and building materials needed to rebuild their community, after the initial clean-up in the days following the tornado, and the Foundation is pleased to assist their grassroots efforts."

"We are forever grateful to The Chrysler Foundation and Chrysler Group employees - both here in Toledo and worldwide," said Linda Greene, President and CEO of ISOH/Impact. "We are well aware that it takes a community to reach out to serve the needs of those whose lives have been forever changed by situations such as the tornadoes that swept through Northwest Ohio."
